The Unit

Building H, Par Six Condominiums. New metal siding visible along the base.

One of the few units in the complex with a built-out extended living area, recorded by Eagle County at 1,260 sq ft. Ground-floor units in the complex are typically 960 sq ft.

The kitchen, bathrooms, and bedrooms match the standard layout; the larger footprint results from a living area extension into a portion of the original deck. A usable deck remains.

Working wood-burning fireplace. Original condition throughout, ready for the next owner to renovate to taste.

Setting and Surroundings

The unit sits within EagleVail, a quiet residential community built around the Eagle-Vail Golf Club. The complex itself, Par Six Condominiums, sits steps from the course. Pocket parks and walkable family-friendly streets thread through the neighborhood, with Stone Creek Trail within walking distance. The building is tucked well away from the main roads and free from I-70 highway noise, while still being five minutes to Beaver Creek and ten minutes to Vail. The unit's primary living areas face a landscaped, treed outlook with mature aspens and evergreens rather than parking exposure.

View along the building's side. Walkway access connects the unit's grassy outlook to Cottonwood Rd.

Two Paths for the Buyer

Live in it

Ground floor in the building positioned farthest from the parking lot, set in a quieter, more park-like section of the complex. Cottonwood Rd runs along the building and offers easy short-term parking just steps from the door, which makes loading and unloading skis, gear, and groceries notably easier than the main lot. No stairs, room to renovate over time without disrupting daily living. Working wood-burning fireplace, a feature most newer construction in the area can no longer permit.

Rent it

Short-term rentals permitted at the HOA level; unincorporated Eagle County declined to adopt county-level STR licensing requirements (May 2025 BOCC decision), and no municipal license applies. Professional STR management is operationally established in this complex, with same-configuration units actively listed on Airbnb and VRBO. The Cottonwood Rd access point and ground-floor entry simplify guest arrival, departure, and gear handling, all of which feature heavily in mountain STR reviews. Buyer to verify revenue projections with a local STR manager for property-specific underwriting.

PRICING THESIS

The most direct comp is #H-55, which sold in original condition at $680 / sq ft. This unit is offered at $615 / sq ft on a meaningfully larger footprint and in a quieter, more park-like position within the building, set away from the parking-lot frontage.

Updated same-complex comps have been transacting at $833 to $864 / sq ft, establishing the renovated exit reference for a buyer planning to update.

A note on size: this unit's additional square footage results from a living area extension into a portion of the original deck. The kitchen, bathrooms, and bedrooms are otherwise standard layout, which means the $/sq ft compression that typically applies to scaled-up floor plans (where added space includes proportionally more wet rooms and bedrooms) is reduced here. The functional layout matches the standard ground-floor units; the difference is room to live.

Independent reference: Eagle County's 2026 actual valuation is $758,070, based on reassessment data that predates the March 2026 same-complex sale at $830,000.
